The past week has been one of encouragement for the cause of free silver, and the political horizon is bright with promise for Bryan and Sewall.

Bryan's journey to New York, where last night he received formal notification of his nomination, was one continuous ovation. The progress of the train was rendered slow by reason of the great crowds of people assembled at almost every station along the route, eager to greet the great commoner. His reception at Chicago rivalled the scene following his nomination by the democratic convention. At Canton, Ohio, the enthusiasm was unbounded, while at Pittsburgh he received an ovation such as has seldom been accorded a person of note in the Smoky city.

Not less significant has been the evident determination of the democrats and populists in the close states to unite upon electors. In Illinois complete fusion was accomplished, while in Iowa a combination of the democrats, populists and prohibitionists seemed reasonably assured. The news from Minnesota, Indiana and Michigan is cheering. Never before was greater enthusiasm shown by the people for a presidential candidate than is manifested for Bryan, nor a more unyielding determination evidenced to overthrow a corrupt government.

A few of the hard money middlemen, procurators in leading strings of John Sherman, Grover Cleveland, and such ilk, obsequious servants of the English syndicate, are again claiming public attention by reason of their dissatisfaction with the democratic platform, which declares that gold and silver coin is the constitutional money of the United States, and that, therefore, it was expedient to reorganize the democratic party and rebaptize it as the "national" democratic party, recognizing gold as the unchangeable coin of the nation and no other as suitable legal tender in the payment of private and national debts. Not exactly in that language, but so veiled as to mystify the generality of readers as to its true import.

The "national" democratic party of the United States, through its committee, announces that for the nomination of candidates for the offices of president and vice president and such business as is incidental thereto, a convention will convene in Indianapolis the 22 day of September, 1896.

"We are for anything," say eastern and southern gold standard men, "to defeat the Chicago ticket and platform." President Cleveland, who is in rapport with the English syndicate, in a telegram to the committee, strongly endorses the movement.

The clergy, who for so many years stood, and are still standing, at the forks of the road as guardian angels conjuring the throng, that daily travels the broad road that leads to perdition, to switch off, take the straight and narrow path that terminates at the pearly gates of which St. Peter holds the keys, are now on the alert to head off Bryan and Sewall partisans of the white metal, whom Bishop Newman, of San Francisco, stigmatizes as no better than anarchists. Another reverend spiritual director in Dalton, Tex., named James Hogart, who mixes religion and politics, precipitated a tornado during divine service, by saying, "Any one who will vote for free silver ought to be pitched into hell, head foremost." A riot ensued. The minister was assaulted; benches and chairs were overturned; clothes were torn and men pummeled each other. Some were badly bruised and others were in that condition which will prevent their attendance in the house of God for several weeks. The minister took French leave of his beloved brethren through a window, omitting the pious formalities of passing the contribution plate and singing the Doxology.

The hot weather in the central and eastern portions of the United States, during the past few days, has been unprecedented, and at last accounts there had been no abatement. In nearly all the large cities previous records of high temperatures were broken, and the list of fatalities is appalling. In St. Louis 95 prostrations and 16 deaths were reported in one day at the city dispensary, which probably represents not more than one-half the heat casualties in the city for that day.

There were also many prostrations reported in Chicago, Cincinnati, New York and other places, and it is estimated that fully two-thirds of the deaths which occurred in those cities last week were directly or indirectly caused by excessive heat. The highest temperature officially reported was 110 degrees at St. Louis, but the range of maximum temperatures recorded by the signal service officers was from 90 to 100 degrees.

Accustomed as we are in Arizona to far greater heat without experiencing any ill effects, or even great discomfort, the mortality throughout the eastern states appears almost incredible. At the same time the comparison confirms the opinion that the climate of Arizona is the most perfect in the world.

At Tempe, last Friday, a party of fifty indignant citizens released two gypsy girls from jail, who had been arrested on the complaint of a daughter of Deputy Constable Fellows, who is said to have been the real offender. The two girls belonged to a band of gypsies, camped on the river bank, and were preparing to make bread, when the Fellows girl and several companions approached and threw sand and manure into the dough, which caused a war of words, and the 11-year-old gypsy went after the intruders with a whip. For this, and for the alleged use of vile language, the two girls were arrested and the older one tried, convicted and sentenced to pay a fine of $15 or spend fifteen days in jail. The trial of the younger gypsy had not taken place, when a large party of the incensed citizens, among whom were many of the leading men of the town, marched to the jail and liberated the unfortunate girls. The incident aroused a good deal of feeling against the local officers, who are charged with bringing numerous cases of a trivial character before the police courts, apparently with the object, chiefly, of making fees.

Proved a Boomerang.

The Rocky Mountain News of the 8th inst. publishes the following special from Chicago: Those silver dollars which a number of merchants brought from beyond the Rio Grande to use as object lessons during the presidential campaign have turned out to be boomerangs. Instead of changing the opinions of the workmen, the move has awakened their antagonism and boycotting resolutions are being adopted by various labor organizations and reform clubs. It is said the leaders in the scheme will be prosecuted for using a substitute money for the legal money of the United States.

During the past week several corporations and firms have put in circulation many Mexican dollars. Many storekeepers in the suburbs do not employ adult help, but place their own children behind the counter. There are many complaints from this class that men and women have entered their stores, while only children were present to wait upon customers, made small purchases and then given Mexican dollars in payment. The change would be given in lawful money. In the tough saloons bartenders take advantage of intoxicated men by giving them Mexican dollars when making change. Many other schemes are being adopted to defraud innocent people. The union printers have declared a boycott on all merchants connected with flooding the city with illegal money.

Early Silver Mining.

The first silver found in Arizona was a lump of pure silver weighing 4000 pounds. The Spaniards did not reach so far north. They had plenty of mines in Mexico, where there was population and production of food, and no Apaches. The Mexicans worked the mines very little—they were mostly engaged in revolutions. The Americans acquired the country in 1853, and exploration commenced the next year under a company formed in San Francisco.

In 1856-7-8-9 the silver mines were opened under many difficulties. The first ore was shipped by wagons to Kansas City, at 12 cents a pound freight, and paid a profit, besides giving the country a reputation for mineral. The Heintzelman mine yielded $4000 a ton, and the business paid $1000 a day—half profit. One man, Colonel Colt, put in $250,000 capital, and money was to be obtained in any quantity for mining enterprises.—C. D. Poston in the Star.

At the Congress mine the shaft is now down 1800 feet and 350 men are employed under ground. In addition to a cyanide plant with a capacity of 100 tons, there is a 40-stamp mill which runs day and night and forty more stamps are to be added. About four miles of tunnels, shafts and stopes have been run. Beside the 1800-foot shaft, two others have been sunk to depths of 700 and 1100 feet respectively. Cross cutting to the second vein has been commenced. The present output of the mine is $80,000 per month.

Cochise county has eight artesian wells, the combined flow of which is about 280 gallons a minute, or 403,200 gallons per twenty-four hours. These wells are all in the neighborhood of St. David.—Prospector.

The Denver Republican calls attention to the fact that this will be the first presidential election since the civil war in which state laws alone will govern. The federal election law was repealed in 1894, and there will be no federal supervisors of election or United States marshals to look after registration or voting in any state this time.

A correspondent of the Gazette says: One of the most severe electric storms ever seen in the north passed over Flagstaff Tuesday night, August 4. Hundreds of tall pine trees were struck by lightning, and oftentimes two or more were burning together. This, with the vivid lightning and terrific peals of thunder, presented a picture that was weird in the extreme. The same writer also reports one of the severest hail storms experienced in Coconino county in years. In places the hail was eighteen inches deep on the ground and many of the hail stones as large as hen's eggs.

Catarrh

Has troubled me for 11 years. I have taken four bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla and am perfectly cured. I think Hood's Sarsaparilla has no equal, and believe that many who are in poor health and have become discouraged, would be restored to good health if they would only give Hood's Sarsaparilla a fair trial.
